Markdown Test

This is a test file for Markdown conversions. Add every construct that shows up in ordinary technical docs. The first paragraph contains tests for bold, italic, both, ~~strikethrough~~, `inline code`, and a link to the Nord palette.

Headings

This is body text to confirm spacing above and below.

It also contains a second line.

Third level

This is body text to confirm spacing above and below.

Fourth level

This is body text to confirm spacing above and below.

Fifth level

This is body text to confirm spacing above and below.

Sixth level

This is body text to confirm spacing above and below.

Lists

Bullet Lists

- A top-level bullet

- Another top-level bullet with sublist:
  - Nested item one
  - Nested item two, which wraps to a second line to check if hanging indents are properly displayed and converted.
    - Third level, because someone always does it
- Back at the top level

Ordered Lists

1. Ordered lists
2. Count correctly
   1. Even when nested
   2. And restart per level
3. And resume after a nested block

Loose Lists

- First loose item.

  With a second paragraph inside it.

- Second loose item.

Blockquotes

> A blockquote. Set back from the body with a bar on the left. It reads as a quote. The bar is frost-colored. Make sure there's no awkward gap at the bottom.
>
> A second paragraph inside the same quote.

Code

Inline code like `git rebase -i HEAD~3` should have a raised background and mono-type with no visible shift.

A fenced block:

```
#!/bin/bash
#
nord-bars.sh
#
Generates nord-bars.png: the 16 Nord palette colors as 50x200 vertical bars.

set -euo pipefail colors=(

  2E3440 3B4252 434C5E 4C566A         # Polar Night
  D8DEE9 E5E9F0 ECEFF4                # Snow Storm
  8FBCBB 88C0D0 81A1C1 5E81AC         # Frost
  BF616A D08770 EBCB8B A3BE8C B48EAD  # Aurora

args=()
for c in "${colors[@]}"; do args+=("xc:#$c")
```

```
done

magick -size 50x200 "${args[@]}" +append "${1:-nord-bars.png}"
```

A block with no language:

```
plain text block preserve  extra  spacing
and   tabs,   which   are   here.
```
